“More Than Just The Two of Us: ABA in Group Settings” – Applied Behavior Analysis (ABA) is the use of techniques and principles to bring about meaningful and positive change in behavior. A wide variety of ABA techniques have been developed for building useful skills in learners with autism, other developmental disabilities, and typical learners – from toddlers through adulthood.

Typically ABA therapy sessions often involve one-on-one interaction between the behavior analyst and the participant. But how can these techniques be extended and used in structured situations such as a classroom lesson during group instruction, as well as in “everyday” situations such as family dinnertime, or the neighborhood playground? Please join us to learn more about this topic and learn some useful applications of ABA in a variety of settings.
